within the Eastern District of New York. Accounts at Banks #1 through #5 were insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

II. The Fraudulent Scheme

9. In or about and between May 2020 and April 2022, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL, together with others, engaged in a scheme to defraud investors and prospective investors in connection with the purported purchase, importation, sale and resale of personal protective equipment ("PPE"), including masks, face shields, fluid resistant gowns and surgical goggles, by SCHLESSEL, Jolt and JSC. As part of the scheme, SCHLESSEL made a series of false and fraudulent statements and material misrepresentations to investors and prospective investors about, among other things: (a) his use of investors' funds; (b) his suppliers, assets, inventory and clients; and (c) guaranteed rates of return on investments. Rather than use investors' funds to purchase and resell PPE as promised, SCHLESSEL misappropriated and used investors' funds for his own personal use and benefit, including to engage in online gambling and to repay earlier investors. Ultimately, the scheme collapsed, resulting in multi-million dollar losses to investors.

10. As part of the scheme, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL falsely represented to investors and prospective investors that their funds would be used to purchase imported PPE for resale to domestic buyers for a profit. SCHLESSEL solicited investments from numerous individuals, including friends, prior investors, fellow volunteers at the Queens Hatzolah emergency medical service and other members of the Orthodox Jewish community, including in Flushing, Queens. SCHLESSEL also made similar material misrepresentations to existing investors in order for them to solicit investments from new investors for SCHLESSEL. For example, John Doe #1 relied on SCHLESSEL's misrepresentations to solicit an investment from John Doe #3 on SCHLESSEL's behalf.

11. The defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL also misrepresented to investors and prospective investors that he had already secured shipments of PPE that were en route from overseas, and that he either had already sold, or already had buyers ready to purchase, the PPE he was purportedly importing. On multiple occasions, SCHLESSEL provided, or caused to be provided, fabricated PPE purchase orders and invoices to investors and prospective investors. In truth, SCHLESSEL did not have PPE suppliers, shipments, inventory or customers as he had represented.

12. To induce investors to invest with him, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL also promised guaranteed rates of return between approximately 8-30 percent and that those returns would be paid within 14 to 60 days of investment. At times, SCHLESSEL memorialized the investments' terms, including the promised performance and returns, in investor agreements.

13. In furtherance of the scheme, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL transmitted, and caused to be transmitted, the investor agreements and the falsified purchase orders and invoices, among other communications, by email and encrypted message between himself and investors and prospective investors. On multiple occasions, these transmissions were sent and received from within the Eastern District of New York. Examples of some of these transmissions include the following:

(a) On or about December 3, 2021, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #1 an encrypted message attaching, among other things, a loan agreement for approximately $130,000.

(b) On or about December 30, 2021, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #1 an encrypted message attaching, among other things, a promissory note for approximately $1 million, and a personal guaranty, in connection with a prospective investment by John Doe #3 on which John Doe #1 was acting as an intermediary. When John Doe #1 asked SCHLESSEL to "Advise if approved to send" to John Doe #3, SCHLESSEL replied "Less [sic] goooo ."

(c) On or about February 4, 2022, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #2 an email that, among other things, attached a promissory note for approximately $400,000, and a personal guaranty, and included wiring instructions for a bank account held in the name of JSC.

(d) On or about February 10, 2022, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #1 an encrypted message attaching a fraudulent purchase order purporting to show that SCHLESSEL purchased over $2 million in PPE.

(e) On or about February 17, 2022, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #2 an email that stated, in part, "The deal is read[y] to go and to get funded. After crunching numbers, I can offer 20% for 30 days if you go in for 200k! If less than 200k, would like to be at 15%. Let me know what I can count you in for and I will send over docs and wiring info." Later that day, SCHLESSEL sent John Doe #2 an email that, among other things, attached a promissory note for approximately $200,000, and a personal guaranty, and included wiring instructions for a bank account held in the name of JSC.

14. To lead investors and prospective investors to believe that their investments were secure, defer investors' requests for the return of their investments and delay discovery of his scheme, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL also misled investors and prospective investors about the safety of their investments by, among other things, offering personal guarantees, misrepresenting the value of his personal assets, fabricating additional documents and lying about his accounts being temporarily frozen.

15. For example, on or about December 14, 2021, SCHLESSEL sent an encrypted message to John Doe #1 that attached falsified account statements for bank accounts that SCHLESSEL controlled. The account statements purported to show that SCHLESSEL had positive cash flows. In truth, the account statements, including the stated deposits and withdrawals, had been altered to inflate the cash flow by approximately $1 million for each month and for each account.

16. Between approximately May 2020 and April 2022, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL obtained over $36.7 million from at least 47 investors, with individual investments ranging between approximately $5,000 and $3.25 million. Investor funds were often sent by investors located within the Eastern District of New York to bank accounts controlled by SCHLESSEL via interstate wire transfer. Examples of some of these transmissions include the following:

(a) On or about December 6, 2021, John Doe #1 wired approximately $30,000 to an account held in SCHLESSEL's name at Bank #1.

(b) On or about December 30, 2021, John Doe #3 wired approximately $1 million to an account held in the name of Jolt at Bank #2.

17. Of the more than $36.7 million in investor funds he obtained, the defendant JASON DONI SCHLESSEL diverted over $26 million to online casino and sports betting services, including to Gambling Company #1, of which he lost approximately $4.7 million from gambling. Of the remaining approximately $32 million, SCHLESSEL used approximately $28.5 million to repay earlier investors, and misappropriated approximately $3.5 million for his own personal use and benefit.
